"Turn this family photo into a Paris street artist souvenir caricature.

Keep the same people from the photo and make sure they remain recognizable. Do not add or remove anyone. A family member should immediately recognize the people in the drawing.

Draw the family in a warm vacation-photo arrangement, standing close together with shoulders touching and heads slightly overlapping. The family should fill most of the page.

Use the style of a real Paris street artist who creates quick tourist caricatures in about 10 minutes. Draw with bold black pen outlines and simple marker coloring on white sketchbook paper.

Create a light caricature with slightly oversized heads and simplified bodies. Keep expressions natural and friendly. Preserve hairstyles, glasses, facial hair, and other recognizable features. Do not make people look younger, thinner, more attractive, or more symmetrical. Recognition is more important than beauty.

Keep faces simple and sketch-like. Use only a few pen strokes for eyes, noses, and mouths. Avoid realistic portrait detail.

Simplify clothing into basic shapes and colors. Do not include detailed patterns, fabric textures, logos, zippers, or clothing details.

Include:

- "Paris" handwritten in the upper left corner
- A small artist signature in one corner
- A large simplified Eiffel Tower behind the family
- A Paris street lamp
- A few fluffy clouds
- Loose faint blue marker strokes in the sky
- Some greenery

The drawing should feel charming, quick, and hand-drawn, like a souvenir sketch purchased from a street artist near the Eiffel Tower.

Not photorealistic.
Not a polished illustration.
Not a digital painting.
Not a fashion drawing.
Not a studio portrait. "
